

Hunt with your Kids, Not for your Kids

BY TRAVIS BULLOCK

Some of my fondest memories have been camping and hunting with my father, mother and brother. The many summer horseback fishing trips and fall elk hunting trips into the wilderness added much to the education that my brother and I received as youngsters. Skills that no classroom could teach came naturally to my parents and were imprinted into my mind in a fun and exciting way. Since I was a C+ student at best scholastically, I guess it is only natural that I chose an occupation in the outdoors. Now that I am a dad, my wife and I are teaching the same lessons to our kids.

Catherine Deblasio and her 2014 buck.

Brought to you by

